Gary –

Just wanted to give you a heads up. We are moving forward with ordering all the sampling equipment, containers and supplies. I believe the cost of the sample containers was a little more than Brenda first anticipated (Encore sample containers are about $10 a piece and we are going to need around 300 of those). I got an email from Michelle Brown saying that the equipment order that she submitted totaled approximately $6k. Brenda doesn't want to take on all these costs since she is covering analytical and shipping, but said she is willing to split the costs with you. She says she will cover all shipping to/from labs but wants to split costs associated with equipment. Since our amendment is still going through the process, Michelle placed all the equipment under her tasking and figured we can work out the details afterwards. Is that okay with you?
